

RELEVANT PRACTICAL MINISTRY FOR MEN

APRIL NEWSLETTER

The idea that large churches don't need ministries like RPM is dispelled with Westside Christian Church. The relationship between RPM and Westside Christian Church in Springfield is strong because of the relationship that has developed between Tom Cheshire and Andrew "Fitz" Fitzgibbon. Fitz understands that Biblically healthy men bring strength to a local church. He sees the value in meeting with RPM, because of the practical applications and resources we have, so that we can sit down and discuss real issues he faces in leading men.

Below you can read Pastor Fitz's personal thoughts on RPM!

RPM has been an invaluable resource for me as the Director of the Men's Community at West Side Christian Church. RPM is knowledgeable about the best resources, they're great at giving advice for men's ministry issues, and they are always quick to respond to a need and eager to meet up and encourage.

The guys at RPM aren't just consultants – they're practitioners.

They're in the trenches and living out the reality of ministering to men in their churches and beyond. They're humble and knowledgeable, and their connection to the broader network of men's ministries makes them one of the best resources I have. They have a Kingdom-minded commitment and a Christ-centered focus that is beneficial to any church desiring to reach men for Jesus.
